

State System News Highlights:

Edinboro nursing students go global

Friday, May 4, 2018

It's no surprise that the health-care world has gone global. The international movement has also made its way to college campuses and especially to Edinboro University's Department of Nursing. This semester, a group of 14 Edinboro nursing students embarked on an incredible journey of service learning to the Dominican Republic.

GoErie.com

Barzev balances life as EMT with classes to earn ESU degree

Wednesday, May 2, 2018

"Daddy, I am not going to college," announced Lucy. "Why not?" "Because you and Mommy didn't go to college," she answered. And that is the reason why Mehmet Barzev, 38, is graduating from East Stroudsburg University this May with a degree in English with a concentration in professional and digital media writing.

By Barbara Marshall, For the Pocono Record

WCU students design museum exhibits

Wednesday, May 2, 2018

Every college campus has its unknown gems. Almost "hidden," in plain sight, at 775 S. Church St. at West Chester University's Old Library, is the university's Museum of Anthropology and Archeology.

By Bill Rettew, The (West Chester) Daily Local News

Field of Dreams: West Chester University football team gives autism kids a night to remember

Monday, April 30, 2018

Three special kids had a chance to live out their dreams Friday evening thanks to first responders and the West Chester University Golden Rams football team.

By Pete Bannan, The (West Chester) Daily Local News

Shippensburg University projects to benefit South Mountain region

Monday, May 7, 2018

Faculty in the geography/earth science department at Shippensburg University recently received funding for projects that have provided a valuable resource to the South Mountain region. The university has been involved with the South Mountain Partnership Mini-Grant Program since it started about a decade ago. It is administered by the Appalachian Trail Conservancy with financial support from the Department of Conservation and Natural Resources. The mini-grant program provides funding for on-the-ground projects to sustain the landscape and promote its resources.

Herald-Mail Media

Kids living with Autism get to live out their dreams

Friday, April 27, 2018

It was an unforgettable Friday night under the lights and in the spotlight for three very special local kids. They are sports fans, they are athletes and they are living with Autism.

WPVI-TV Philadelphia

ESU holds commencement ceremonies

Saturday, May 5, 2018

East Stroudsburg University is wrapping up its 125th academic year and with that comes annual commencement ceremonies. More than 1,000 students graduated to rounds of thunderous applause, jubilation and the occasional tear in ceremonies held on Friday and Saturday.

By Patrick Campbell, The Pocono Record