Channeling music that's rooted but eclectic, emotional but adventurous, and all-around breathtaking, this duo delivers an eclectic blend of traditional Irish music, hot jazz, bluegrass and baroque to the Ware Center's Owen Salon. Irish harper Máire Ní Chathasaigh and UK acoustic guitarist Chris Newman bring an eclectic mix of Celtic, hot jazz, bluegrass and baroque music to the Ware Center's Owen Salon.

Máire Ní Chathasaigh is one of Ireland's most important and influential traditional musicians as she developed new techniques that made it possible for the first time to play traditional music on the harp in a stylistically accurate way.

Chris Newman is a prolific composer whose stage credits include the Boys of the Lough and Stéphane Grappelli.
