

Dr. Richard Fulmer, faculty emeritus in the School of Social Work (SOWK), died Dec. 19.

Fulmer retired from Millersville University in 2010 and was granted emeritus status that same year.

“Dr. Fulmer was a valued member of the School of Social Work where he taught social welfare policy and law,” said Dr. Karen Rice, chair SOWK, “He was the faculty advisor to the THIS (The Harrisburg Internship Semester) program and coordinated undergraduate field education during his tenure. Dr. Fulmer will be remembered by colleagues and former students for his generosity of spirit, love of Marauder basketball, and the phrase "bleeding little social worker hearts."

Read Dr. Fulmer's full obituary in LancasterOnline here.