ARCHITECTURE FOR GLOBAL LEARNING

Fall 2018 Workshop Series

Session III:

Global Learning for 21st Century Workforce Development

This AGL session provides examples of the new ways international educators and employers are identifying and developing students' global competencies; those that 21st century graduates are expected to have as they transition into career paths in an evolving, global marketplace. Presenters focus on examples from different settings. Faculty, career center advisors, and administrators from any discipline concerned with the development of global learning that addresses these labor market requirements will benefit from this session.

Thursday, December 6th

2:00 PM - 3:30 PM

Ford Atrium

McComsey Hall
