“Why the Environment Matters!
Opportunities for Nurse Leaders”
Katie Huffling, RN, MS, CNM is a Certified Nurse Midwife and is the Executive Director the Alliance of Nurses for Healthy Environments. Ms. Huffling works with nurses and national nursing organizations on a variety of environmental health issues including climate change, chemical policy, inclusion of environmental health into nursing education, and sustainable healthcare.

Ms. Huffling has written numerous peer-reviewed articles on environmental health issues and was an editor of the environmental health e-textbook “Environmental Health in Nursing” that won the 2017 AJN Book of the Year in Environmental Health. She was also the recipient of the 2018 Charlotte Brody Award which recognizes nurses who go beyond everyday nursing endeavors to proactively promote and protect environmental health.

The Alliance of Nurses for Healthy Environments (ANHE) is a network of nurses and nursing organizations from around the country (and world) that are acting at the intersection of health and the environment to promote health. Our mission is to promote healthy people and healthy environments by educating and leading the nursing profession, advancing research, incorporating evidence-based practice, and influencing policy. We are a group of nurses from all walks of our profession. Our works aims to harvest, connect, and guide a nursing vanguard as we move the profession forward in promoting healthy environments for all by engaging in environmentally safe practices and health policies. We are free to join and all nursing students and nurses are welcome.
